INDIAN TRIBE DEFIES ORDERS TO QUIT CAMP

Thirty-five Families Take Up Abode on Disputed Land
WINNIPEG, Sept. 21.—Led by a militant chief a band of 30 families of the Native Indian tribe has defied orders of authorities and encamped on what they claim as their ancient reserve 12 miles north of Winnipeg, Man. The Indians left their reserve on the Fisher river late in July and since they have been living at St. Peter's despite efforts of Indian agents and Royal Canadian Mounted police to induce them to leave.

The Indian claim the move marks the climax of a dispute of 25 years standing. In 1887 the band surrendered the reserve at St. Peter's and under the terms of an agreement were to get $800 per head and a reserve at Fisher river. Chief Dry Eyes, head of the band, claims his people never received $800 and have been unable to make a living on the Fisher river reserve.
Appeals to the courts and even to the government-general proved fruitless, he claims, and now he is determined to get back the original reserve. Members of the band are preparing to erect houses for the winter at St. Peter's and several more families are expected to arrive soon.

FATE OF P.G.E. BALANCES ON POLITICAL ROW

Looms Large in British Columbia Strife Over Tolmie

VICTORIA, Sept. 21.—The fate of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway looms large as a major factor for sale of the line and the future of the political strife in British Columbia.
There is a belief that the negotiations now under way with interested British and United States interests for sale of the line will have the future of the railway in view.
The purchase would make a cash deposit to show good faith. The would take over immediately operation of the road and its operating deficits.
TO PEACE RIVER
They would enter it in the Peace river, where the extension is made, and will before the government would turn over to them twenty million acres of land in the Peace River block and at other places along the line.
The purchasers would pay the government for the land at a small price, $1.50 per acre being suggested, as the land was sold.
RID OF BURDEN
There is reason to believe that the government hopes to rid itself of the entire financial burden of the railway, including the original guarantee of twenty million dollars and the heavy commitments made since.
The point at which there may be a sharp division of opinion may be the terms of the disposal of the great land area involved. There is said to be a well-defined Liberal opinion against disposal of the northern empire at the price suggested. The Liberal convention in October may take some stand on the matter.

ANYTHING BUT THAT
Premier Talmie says he will call the legislature together after a while, construct some kind of a synthetic cabinet, and then let the ministers decide whether he is to go or stay. He is willing to do anything, that is, except follow the constitutional procedure proper in the circumstances and tender
his resignation to the Lieutenant-Governor.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?
Gay Wood warmed up his engine the other day and sent Mrs. Amos over the water at the official rate of 126 miles per hour. Kay Don a few weeks ago set the official record when Miss England travelled 119 miles an hour. Yet when they met at Detroit to race neither of the Motors did any better than 79 miles. Apparently these prima donnas of the water are as temperamental as the prima donna of the stage. When they won't, and when they won't they won't.

THE GUILTY FLEE
The city police are looking for a couple of motorists who knocked them down on the streets and sped away to escape detection. It may occur to anyone who has seen a motorist who has been known to and drives on in ignorance of the occurrence. But when the driver promptly stops on the gas button and drives away from the scene
he commits himself of the crime of trying to defeat
the ends of justice and escape any responsibility that may attach to his crime.

It is no mercy due to a man of that stamp and when one is apprehended he should get every thing of the law in the way of punishment.
Aside from other penalties, the driver should be convicted and executed permanently. With the increasing number of motor cars, the streets can be no safe even if all parties exercise a civil regard for others. The man who refuses to do that should not be permitted to drive a car. The automobile is altogether too dangerous a machine to be entrusted to the hands of cowards and thieves.

WHO IS TO STOP THEM?
Bolivia reports that it is still holding the fort.
Fort Bogueron, against the Paraguayan forces, at the end of a rocky ridge, is still in the hands of the Bolivians.

That may not be war, but it is sufficiently like the real thing to call for the use of all the peace machinery that has been built up so laboriously in the last fourteen years. The Bolivians are fighting Washington has already cited the Kellogg pact as a reason why these two countries should not fight.
What the League of Nations has done is yet to be ascertained.

That either the United States or the League should do anything more than talk with their tongues and offer to mediate the dispute, is not at all likely. This war, like that in Manchuria, appears to be fought for the sake of the money that is to be made out of it. It is a little more than a little danger of it spreading into a conflict involving other countries.

So long as they keep it in the category of a "private fight," Bolivia and Paraguay will likely be allowed to settle their jungle war in the way they see fit.

BACK ON THE JOB
Eighteen hundred laid-off employees of the National Railways in the west have gone back to work, to help move the grain and are expected to be regularly employed for four months or more on the job. The C.P.R. has probably taken back as many, since there are no more grain cars in the territory it serves, as in that of its competitor.

This is one of the early results of the big crop, and an important one. In Edmonton and every other railway centre in the west men have been buying power who a few weeks ago had none, and are in prospects of steady work and continued buying power for months to come. That means bread in the streets and a brighter future during the winter and winter that could have followed if the crop had been meagre.

In every western city and town the earnings of the railroaders is an important item in the community revenue, and their spending a large factor in sustaining business conditions. That so many of them are back on the pay-roll is good news from the strictly business point of view. It is also in line with the standpoint of human welfare.

GETTING ON THEIR FEET
The earnings of the people of the Northwest have hardly hit last year than those of the people of any of the other provinces. Conditions in that province according to the census, were marked improvement as the result of this year's good crop and are shown in conditions elsewhere.

This betterment is summarized in the statement that whereas last year the Provincial Government had to find $18,000,000 for relief, one million is thought to be sufficient to cover the needs during the coming twelve months.

The farmers who last year had to be supported are this year able to support themselves, pay their current taxes, repay the advances made to them for seed, tools and repairs to machinery, and provide their own seed for next spring's sowing.

They are not of course paying tax another or taxation on private property, and their situation will have to be spread in one way or another over a term of years, and wiped out from the proceeds of successive crops.

The Saskatchewan farmers have endured a hard
and discouraging experience with fire, drought and a shortage of seed. Their fellow countrymen everywhere who have been at the mercy of the fortune that has come to them, and hope that the future will speedily make up their losses and reward their perseverance and industry.

Brick-laying on the Government building, which is to be used as land, fund, and registry office began on Tuesday. The building is on the south side of Victoria avenue, and will be two stories in height.

Minister Courtenay-The affairs of the government of the Northwest Territories are indeed in a most unsatisfactory condition. The assembly is proposed without having passed a single bill of any importance, and the Lieutenant Governor, with an executive too weak to transact the business of the house, and at the same time lacking the confidence of the people, is left to dispose of a total fund of $20,000.

A meeting of the directors of the Edmonton agricultural society was held on Saturday afternoon in the office of W. J. Crowley, 210 St. James Street.
Mr. J. T. Fether, president, M. J. D. Crowley, M.
McCauley, president, M. J. D. Crowley, M. J. D. Crowley,
R. McKenna, J. P. Adams, W. Walker, J. Loeby, D. C. Roberts, C. S. Long, R. Kelly, and J. C. Young, secretaries. Arrangements were made for the annual exhibition, to be held on the 13th and 14th of October.

D. E. Noyes left on Wednesday for White Mud
Lake, near the Jasper House, with a train of pack horses.

A Scotch gentleman who has resided in Himg Kong for 25 years told the Winnipeg Tribune recently that there is in China a large and constantly increasing market for good food and dairy products and hams.

Strathcona is estimated to total 4,000,000 bushels

Miss Short has received a wire from Capt.
Hanna stating that an engine and coach for operation on the E.V. & P. will be sent to Edmonton
at once.

A cabbage grown in Donald Hing's garden this year weighed 25 pounds.

P. T. Fisher has returned from a trip to Winnipeg.

Some City Jews, reports a story from there, at Omaha the thermometer registered 26 degrees.

Twenty Years Ago
Week-end—it is reported that deposits of oil
and asphalt have been found at Pigeon Lake.

Winnipeg—Hon. W. J. Aitken is dead.

Detroit—Governor Wilson, Democratic candidate for the presidency, declared a speech here that trusts flourished under Mr. Roosevelt's term more than under any other in the history of the country.

Winnipeg—The best customer for British exports, with Germany second.

Work started yesterday on the line of the Canadian Northern which is to run from Bruderheim eastward via Vermilion, to the south through Wainwright and Medicine Hat to the International boundary.

TEN YEARS AGO
Lieut. Col. Palmer, with all the officers and privately all the N.C.O.s and men of the 4th battalion have offered their services to the department of militia in the war against the Turks
about the Dardanelles.

Boston—Firefighters are in this port carrying 100-tons of British coal to relieve the New England shortage.

At a largely attended meeting of protest held in the Memorial Hall the following resolution was passed:

That this meeting emphatically protest against the action of the city council whereby the agreement with the Northern Alberta Natural Gas Development Co. was varied without being submitted to the approval of the ratepayers, and call upon the Provincial Government to take the steps necessary to protect the rights of the ratepayers, as granted by the city charter.

A herd of 42 animals were observed feeding north of Medicine Hat
and the work of fencing the area was successfully carried out. Since then they have driven, evidently inquisitive of their captives, and of their grateful native animals are rapidly being returned in groups to the Department of Interior, Ottawa.

WHO THEN WOULD PAY?
One who presenting her plan for checking the depression and returning the country to prosperity, Miss Anna Margulies, P.P., told a Kinsmen audience "I would take the taxes from where the money is." Then she asked called a "steeply graduated" income tax, an increase in the inheritance tax, and the issue of $300,000,000 of Dominion bonds to be paid by the government for its expenses until absorbed.

Such a marked depreciation can be taken in connection with the deflation in other lines, especially in stocks and bonds, and may indicate that ten years ago the valuation of farm lands and buildings was valued, in a somewhat diminution of the way in which money was watered. The values of 1921 were fictitious and the farmer was considering himself to be far richer than he was. Look at the inflation which has been an unwarranted scale of values—P. J. Williams Time-Journal.

A Rose Bush Talks
By Edgar Wallace

"Take it!" the rose bush seemed to say.
"Cut now my luckiest blossom now."
And up it in your coat.

Of the dark, maiden gown and fair,
Whose eyes glow green and blue,
Before the eyes of the great, tall
Before the eyes of the great, tall

"I guess not that my fabled bloom
Are cut and carried to some Where lovely people sleep,
Or that I will go, passing by,
And bear my best away,
Calling his mother out to see
The miracle God works through me."

"That is my life, my future lies
In the hands of the great, tall
And soon to cut it all.
To hear the garden say, 'Leave them
To the hands of the great, tall
And soon to cut it all.
To hear the garden say, 'Leave them
To the hands of the great, tall

The Woman's Page Features, Fashions

LOVE NOT ALL THERE IS IN LIFE

DEAR MISS DIX:—The people who constitute this triangle are around 20. They are my girl friend, my wife and myself. The wife is a sensible, practical, and as a result, she is a little bit of a bore. She has the love of the people of the people. She is faithful, economical, understanding and unselfish. We have a child of seven. The girl friend is a Jew, though inclined to be selfish like myself. She has qualities my wife will never equal. We are much in love and look at each other with the same adoration. I have offered to give my wife one-half of my salary and all that I have if she will release me from her marriage. She has refused. Not only on account of herself but because it will deprive me of a career and the child as well. The girl friend is willing to assist with a portion of her salary in starting me in a professional career if I separate from this wife. The girl contends that if I have her I will throw everything to the winds and come to her and I maintain that there are some things in life that even love does not surpass. I feel a sense of responsibility toward my child that seems to be above love. So this is the question at issue between the three of us. Both women are materialists and I must make a decision. What are your comments on this situation?

BETWEEN THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP BLUE SEA

DOROTHY DIX

Answer:—I agree with you that there are things more important in life than love. There is honor. There is the obligation that a man has to the child he has brought into the world, and if he has any sense of duty he can find no happiness in a love that he has bought at the price of his conscience.

We can say all we please about the right of a man and a woman to live their own lives and to get their first that they are and the rest of them as they really live. But no aspiration can blind us to the fact that it is one to live with, who are real victims of every divorce and who are left fatherless or motherless.

They miss the peaceful home atmosphere in which alone a child can grow up normally. They lack either a mother or a father's guidance and love and almost invariably they develop warped and distorted personalities and attitudes that are a curse to them and to their lives. The head of a fashionable school in which a large proportion of the pupils are the children of divorced parents recently declared that there was a marked difference between the youngsters and the children of happily married fathers and mothers. He said the children of divorced parents were most invariably pessimistic and bitter in their outlook on life and made poorer marks in their studies than the others.

Feeling as you do, I don't think you will find much happiness if you divorce your wife and marry the girl. Always remember that the child you have had deserved would come between you and her. And sometimes I think we get a clean happiness out of doing our duty that is better and more satisfying than any lot of things of passion. But God help the man who has to decide between two women who love him, for he is bound to hurt one or the other and his own heart.

Husband Is Selfish, He Won't Dance

Wife Plays Cards For His Sake—He Doesn't Reciprocate

By VIRGINIA LEE

SELFISHNESS—is that what would make a marriage?

You do what I want you to do, but don't expect me to do what you want me to do.

It makes no difference whether the selfish one is husband or wife.

Few husbands will give up indefinitely, if they should they would be fools.

And when the husband is selfish, it is his fault.

DEAR MISS VIRGINIA:—I am a girl of 23 and am married to a man who plays cards for his sake.

Who Are You?

Parmeier

This name has been called Parmeier, Parmalee and Parmelee, but the original form was Parmeier, and was represented in America by John Parmeier, who was one of the original founders of the town of Guilford, Conn., and a signer of the "Covenant" in 1639.

The Parmeier got in their share of service to the struggling young John, Jr., who was a drummer boy in the Connecticut train band at an early age, and during King Philip's war, he was the son of John, Jr., served as a soldier and was killed in battle.

The coat of arms here shown is that of the descendant of John Parmeier, the founder. The colors are blue, white and red.

Why argue, in chief three motifs of six points. Crest: A covered cup or, between two wings sable charged with a mullet of the third. Motto—Deus qui patitur.

Made Permanent Waves With Stick and Mud

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

THE ANCIENT Egyptians had a most way of putting a curl in their tresses. They would wind their hair on sticks and plaster on mud to set it.

When the mud was dry, they would wash it off, leaving their hair in curls.

It is a curious fact, but it is true, that the process had to be repeated often. But for the time being, it was a success.

Today, when we have a stick and mud, we have a permanent wave.

Are you afraid of your mirror?

NIGHTS of shallow, restless sleep caused by drinking tea and coffee which contain tannin and caffeine, make a face shabby. Eyes fade too soon when nerves twitch in sleeplessness. There are, of course, many people who can drink tea and coffee in moderation without feeling the ill effects without suffering from sleeplessness or other distressing disorders. But not everyone, by any means. If tell-tale wrinkles caused by sleeplessness are creeping up on you, here are good news.

CHAPTER I

THREE offices in the Equity Building are spacious and attractive. They have the atmosphere of successful business. The corner offices overlooking Tenth street are equipped with mahogany furniture, easy chairs and convenient ash trays. A great glass-topped desk stands almost in the centre of the deep rug. In spite of this atmosphere on a Friday afternoon at 10 minutes past one the air of the 216 was surcharged with something almost explosive.

"Mr. Ball from Blind River, eh?" Asper Delo's face was purple with anger. "Mr. Ball, you are a dirty Irish snoop!" The owner, or one, of the Delo Timber Company sprang to his feet and, moved ponderously across his desk. The target of his wrath, a lean young man with a freckled nose and wide firm mouth, looked the big bear over with amused grey eyes. He saved his Stetson back as though to allow a shock of unruly, dark hair a little more freedom. It was plain that he was a man more accustomed to the saddle than to the soft carpets of Suite 216.

"I never knew a squarhead who could keep his temper," Stan Ball drawled with mock gravity.

Asper Delo smashed the glass top of his desk with a huge fist and exploded wrathfully. "You came here to insult me!" His words choked him.

"I came here to tell you the truth and I aim to get it out of my system," Stan Ball grinned, showing a set of even, white teeth. With an easy swing of his booted leg he planted himself upon the wide window ledge overlooking Tenth street.

Asper Delo's bony jaws worked until his blue eyes bulged, but no words came.

"You have committed several murders and you are a prime thief!" Stan Ball made the statements easily. As he spoke his eyes wandered down into the crowded street. He gazed thoughtfully at the tops of the hurrying cars while the timber king spluttered and strove to gain control of his voice.

A shiny limousine pulled up at the curb below. Stan's firm mouth twisted into a sneer as he watched a liveried driver step out of the car and walk across the street with two very attentive companions. Old Asper Delo, two-limbed lumber man, had gone swanky with a town car and a uniformed driver.

The young man's thoughts were rudely interrupted. "You'll eat those words," Asper Delo's nose was thrust almost into Stan Ball's face.

The lanky cowboy slid from the window ledge and his high-heeled boots clicked on the polished floor beside the rug. With a short laugh he raised himself and, faced Asper Delo. The amused light left his eyes and they glinted as he shoved the timber king away with a lean arm.

"Maybe you never shot a man in the back yourself but your straw boss up at Three Rivers has hired it done. Not once but three times!" Stan Ball's jaw thrust out aggressively. "You own that outfit and you're responsible." He leaned toward Asper Delo and his eyes were hard. "I'm going up there to get a report of your workings, an honest report—get that! Stan pushed his hat back a little further. "I came up here to tell you so that you could call your man, Swergin, and have him hire a breed to shoot me in the back."

Asper Delo was past words but he was not past action. In the days when he had run his own crews he had ruled with his fists. Now his Viking blood boiled within him. With a rasping roar he swung his fist at Stan Ball's chin.

That irritating young man sidestepped with lightning smoothness. Without seeming effort he slid in nearer and in a second Asper Delo was neatly tied with his own big arms holding themselves. Stan Ball shoved him back against the desk and his wicked grin returned.

"You will fight, won't you? But you haven't the sand to do your own killing." There was a taunting edge to the words.

Breathing heavily, Asper Delo collected himself. He was not licked by any means but he realized that he was not much for the lean young man who faced him. He shook his fist impatiently and retreated round his desk.

"You'll never set foot on the Three Rivers cuttings, you lying whelp!" Stan Ball tried to intimidate the timber checked by a government man and we don't allow fools meddling with our business," Asper gripped the top of his desk and his words were as firm as steel.

"Yes, inspected and reported? Well, Mr. Delo, we are getting our own report and we are turning it over to the Department of the Interior. Your game is up at Three Rivers." Turning toward the man in the suit, Stan Ball with the speechless timber king glaring at him.

Stan halted on the sidewalk outside the Equity Building, a smile twisting the corners of his lips. He had given Asper Delo fair warning of what he was going to do. No doubt the timber king was already rushing a long-distance call through to his boss, Swergin, at Three Rivers. He noticed that at once, but he was furiously angry. He slid around to the door which stood open and inviting.

The heavy-set guard had placed his chair close to the opening and his back was partly turned. It was evident that this job of his captive's irritation had diverted him from his job of watching the clearing and the road. Possibly a feeling of security made him so. At any rate he was totally surprised as a lanky form shot through the open door and descended upon him.

Stan landed at the fellow's side at one leap. With a smashing blow to the butt of the ear he sent the kidnapper reeling from his chair. Grinning a hard smile, and with a boot ready to kick the automatic out of the ruffian's hand should he go for it, Stan Ball stood over the wilted man and waited for him to rise. The prostrate enemy failed to move a muscle. Stan's blow had been a knockout punch and what he had looked fair to be a no-man fight had ended in a rout.

Gurgling sounds from the captive caused Stan to start guiltily. He sprang across the room and freed her. She did not faint or fall into his arms. Instead she stamped over to the prostrate thug and bent over him. With a savage jerk she relieved him of his gun. Stan Ball burst out laughing and his freckled nose wrinkled until the brown spots danced.

"You have a way with gunmen, Ma'm." He bowed with a flourish of his wide hat, then held out his hand for the gun. "Better let a man from the mountains have that gun, Miss."

They faced each other for a second. Then the girl joined Stan's laugh with a soft snicker. "It is really funny, isn't it?" She passed him the gun without hesitating in the least. Even such unusual circumstances did not alter the case.

"Dela Delo, Delo!" They were at the door as she spoke. Delo did not wait for her to open it. He slipped out of himself and her words halted him abruptly. He looked upon her slender beauty and her wind-blown hair that had not parted from city air and his lips parted as he realized who she was. "Old Asper's daughter—with all the old boy's spunk," he thought as he followed her outside without speaking.

Dela Delo did not notice this omission. She was still angry and excited. She wheeled and laid a small hand upon his arm. "You must think me silly or unappreciative but I'm mad clear through. That cad, Graham, put it over on me that he was a college chum of Dudley's and get me out to the car. But for you I'd most likely have stayed tied up and Dad would have had to pay." She smiled up at him so radiantly that Stan became at once aware of his dust-covered clothing, his freckles and his shock of unruly hair.

"Nothing out of the way that I did," he stammered un- easily.

"How did you happen to be here?" She removed her hands from his but they were still close and gripped her arm.

Stan opened his mouth, then closed it and gripped her arm. "I hear a car coming. We'd better hit for cover." With a strong arm he pushed her into the willows.

He struck through the timber in the direction he remembered the highway to be. A half hour's breathless hiking brought them to a main road and Stan flagged a passing motorist. Delo was eager to get to a telephone and call her father before the two missing thugs could send him a note. They stopped at a lunch stand and filling station and Delo rushed inside with Stan at her heels.

Asper Delo was appraised of the kidnapping and rescue at the same time. Delo turned from the phone and called to Stan. "You haven't told me your name?"

"Stanley Black," Stan lied without batting a single freckle. He was not going to have Asper Delo hand him the keys to Three Rivers on a platter. He would get his report and the old will-way would be his.

Ten minutes later he was kicking himself for what he had done. Her anger gone, Delo Delo was a very alluring feminine creature. She had brushed a hot dog and sipped soda from a bottle Stan thought her the most attractive girl he had ever seen. He made up his mind to tell her so as to be able to see her again. Of course she was unattainable for one of his standing but he was sure she would be friendly. He just sat and looked at her for what seemed only a few minutes. She broke into his thoughts abruptly by saying:

"But you have Swergin at Three Rivers and you've already said he was your most efficient man? You haven't been up there since the work started. Why go now?" Delo's face was more interested in locating Stanley Black and repaying him in a proper manner than in having her father rush off to an obscure timber camp. She felt he would be just the person to handle Stanley Black. They seemed to have many traits in common.

"Swergin is all right, but this is a personal matter," Asper Delo's face began to purple again as he remembered.

"What was it all about?" Delo asked resignedly. It was clear that the Three Rivers affair would have to be heard before anything else was considered.

"A whipsnapper noising around for a report on the Three Rivers tract," Asper grunted.

"That's supervised timber. Why not let him help himself?" Delo was impatient.

"The Three Rivers tract is paying and it's been handled right but that brat doesn't get to check it over or anybody else! It is a tough stand to make a profit on. That's why I'm so mad at him." Asper's face began to redden.

"Don't leave orders to find Mr. Black and have him shipped out to the house tomorrow." He rose and held out his arm. "Now we must get back and report this mess to the police."

But you have Swergin at Three Rivers and you've already said he was your most efficient man? You haven't been up there since the work started. Why go now?
